The Inter-European Division Department of Education, the General Conference Faith and Science Council, and the Geoscience Research Institute have the honor of announcing the 2019 European Faith and Science Conference LIVE CREATION!

This 8-day conference in the breathtaking Spanish Pyrenees will bring together science and Bible teachers, theology professors, university students, youth leaders, and church administrators, for lectures, field trips, and networking. Leading scientists and theologians will present on one of the most exciting and challenging topics for Seventh-day Adventist Christians: the fundamental belief in biblical creation. Discussion of issues and difficult questions will be accompanied by careful examination of the evidence from the Bible, biology, geology, and paleontology, in a context supportive of the Scriptural record of origins.

PRESENTERS: Theology scholars and Adventist scientists currently doing research and publishing their results in major scientific journals.

RESOURCES: Attendees will receive practical training to address origin topics in schools and churches, along with a set of educational materials.

FIELD TRIPS: Led by professional geologists and biologists, we will discover signatures of earth's catastrophic past, and admire the wonders of God's creation at spectacular geology sites.

Because of hotel capacity and field trip logistics, the number of attendees is limited to 150. Places will be distributed among EUD Unions, Educational Institutions, and university students.

Do not miss the opportunity to attend or send representatives to this fantastic educational experience. Those who attend will benefit personally and professionally, and enrich their institutions!
